Attention: Ben Henson, Executive Director and Marc L. Weinberg, General Counsel RE: My private street address on National Registry

Dear Gentleman:

Last week I had an irate borrower pound on my front door at almost 11 PM because he wanted an explanation for the value I gave him on his real estate appraisal. This deeply disturbed my spouse and her 3 year old daughter as to the security of being an appraiser. The tall menacing man said he got my address from the ASC National Appraisal Directory on the Internet. I calmed him down and inconveniently took the time to explain the appraisal process wearing my robe in my living room.

Would you like this to happen to you? What would your wife say?

The California Office of Real Estate Appraisers clearly has my address listed as my post Office Box. The street address is given for record but is not to be made public. You must change this on your records and website immediately or be liable for the responsibility of any wrong doings to me or my family as the result of your public posting.

I think this is a serious matter and would enjoy a response from the ASC. There must be a concern for the privacy of the licensed appraiser. It is not my will to deal with the public on a 24 hour basis at my personal residence.

Thank You.

PS The expiration date on my license is 04/24/2001 not 2000 as listed on your records.
